ABOUT JMFS

The “Jason Max Ferdinand Singers” is a project that I have thought about since 2001. I had the sound of the ensemble in my head, and had plans to make a debut the summer of 2020, but COVID19 forced a hiatus. In January of 2021, a creative opportunity was asked of me, and after some hesitation and contemplation, I decided to take a dive into the deep, feeling I would be a dupe not to heed the signs!

Then, January 6, 2021 happened; what a day in the history of America. A bevy of emotions were surging through my being; however, optimism was leading the way. I felt strongly, “we will get through this,” and one thing I was very sure about...this newly formed ensemble would have a voice in speaking to some of these societal deformities. I felt determined to not be a bystander and to let my creative voice be heard!

Admittedly, I was excited and a tad nervous. It would take some doing and we would have to put forth a great deal of effort. I was awake late into the night wondering about this and that, when a calm came over me and my thoughts pointed to, “things will all work out.” Excitement was ramping up as “Live from London” started promoting the festival, the singers were committed and rehearsals were moving forward, and our repertoire was absolutely “on fire!” I knew this was our moment.

The “Jason Max Ferdinand Singers” has been birthed and the ensemble is continuing its unifying journey. It is with gratitude and humility that I bring to you these talented singers who breathe life into the works of outstanding composers, as we all move forward in our lives and times.

JMFSI 2023

The Jason Max Ferdinand Singers Institute (JMFSI) is aimed to bring a collaborative and lively style of education to young musicians. The 2023 institute caters to high school students desiring to musically enrich their education and further develop their career paths. JMFSI's objective is to embolden its students in the areas of excellence, innovation and execution, in line with the organization's motto.

Taking place over five days, students will have the opportunity to choose from two program tracks and work with Dr. Jason Max Ferdinand and members of the JMFSI faculty. From Monday-Friday, students will engage in lessons, planned rehearsals, sectionals, masterclasses and class time combined with extra-curricular activities and outreach throughout the day. On the final day, the students will present a final showcasing concert in their respective tracks. The repertoire for the choral track will be chosen by Dr. Ferdinand and the JMFSI choir clinicians. Repertoire for the vocal track will be chosen between JMFSI voice faculty and admitted students at their discretion.

HOW TO APPLY

Applicants will be able to view information on how to apply on the JMFS website. Applications will be submitted on GetAcceptd.com. Track 1 & 2 will have specific application requirements to aid in the selection process.
